We measure our lives in months and years. The wood mouse's life is measured in hours and days. This tiny mammal, a member of the rodent family, has a childhood lasting only for three weeks.

Survival is a difficult task for such a small creature. The wood mouse ventures out mainly at night, using its whiskers to feel its way through the darkness. It has good sight and hearing, and an excellent sense of smell. However, the wood mouse is relatively defenseless, and many fall prey to owls, hawks, crows, foxes, and other predators.

The mouse's main survival strategy is to breed at speed. A single mother may have several litters of babies, totally 25 to 30 offspring in a year. With so many babies, the chances are that only one or two will survive.

The wood mouse has many similarities to its close cousin, the house mouse. For both, life starts in a cozy nest. The new babies are pink and furless. Their eyes are closed, and there is no sign of the typically large mouse ears. They depend completely on their mother. She suckles them with her milk, licks them clean, removes their droppings, and keeps the nest clean. If they wriggle too far, she picks them up in her mouth and returns them to the nest.

- (B) 41. How long does it take a wood mouse to grow into maturity?
- (A) Less than one week (B) Less than one month
- (C) More than one month (D) More than one year
- (A) 42. How does the wood mouse move around in darkness?
- (A) With the help of whiskers (B) With the help of ears
- (C) With the help of eyes (D) With the help of the nose

- (A) They run very fast.
- (B) They produce their young in big quantity.
- (C) They scare away their enemies.
- (D) They don't go out in the daytime.
- 44. According to the passage, what makes a difference between a wood mouse and a house mouse?
- (A) The size of the ears (B) The size of the eyes
- (C) The color of the fur (D) The color of the nose

Psychologists have long known that people can solve their problems at work and home by “sleeping on it.” Dr. Deirdre Barrett advises individuals to ponder questions just before falling asleep(Should I take this job? Should I marry that guy?) and then let the subconscious provide the answers. “I’ve known artists looking for inspiration who simply dream up a future show of their art and wake up with plenty of new painting ideas,” says Barrett. “More and more people are learning these techniques to control their dreams.”

Dr. Stephen LaBerge, for example, has pioneered a way of directing the sleeping mind through “lucid dreaming,” in which a sleeping person realizes he or she is dreaming while it is happening. In “lucid dreaming,” your dreams are like private movies where you are the star, director, and writer all at once. Lucid dreamers can use the experience for a variety of purposes: problem solving, developing creative ideas, and healing. A person may use lucid dreaming for everything from talking to his/her long-dead father to gorging on sweets. Moreover, a weak swimmer in the waking life may dream of diving to the bottom of the dream ocean without worrying about breathing (or his/her swimming skills). Most importantly, lucid dreaming is free and available to everybody.

(B) 46. Why does Dr. Barrett suggest people ponder questions before falling asleep?

- (A) To remember the questions clearly when waking up
- (B) To come up with creative ideas from dreams
- (C) To solve the problems before falling asleep
- (D) To give the subconscious a good rest

(D) 47. According to the passage, which of the following can help us solve problems?

- (A) Sleeping without dreams
- (B) Interpreting others’ dreams
- (C) Forgetting our dreams
- (D) Directing our dreams

(C) 48. Which of the following statements is NOT a benefit of lucid dreaming?

- (A) It is free of charge.
- (B) It has healing power.
- (C) It induces sound sleep.
- (D) It generates creative ideas.

(D) 49. What does the author try to prove with the example of the weak swimmer?

- (A) Dreams reinforce illusions.
- (B) Dreams introduce new ideas.
- (C) Dreams are different from reality.
- (D) Dreams satisfy subconscious desires.

(C) 50. Which of the following statements about “lucid dreaming” is true?

- (A) “Lucid dreaming” is available to those able to both direct and act in movies.
- (B) Movie stars can enjoy “lucid dreaming” more than movie directors.
- (C) People both act in and direct their dreams in “lucid dreaming.”
- (D) Sleeping persons are more like movie stars than like movie directors in “lucid dreaming.”
