People evolve a language in order to describe and thus control their circumstances, or in order not to be submerged by a reality that they cannot articulate. A Frenchman living in Paris speaks a subtly and crucially different language from that of the man living in Marseilles; 37 sounds very much like a man living in Quebec; and they would all have great difficulty in apprehending what the man from Guadeloupe, or Martinique, is saying, 38 the man from Senegal—although the “common” language of all these areas is French. But each has paid, and is paying, a different price for this “common” language, in which, as it turns out, they are not saying, and cannot be saying, the same things: they each have very different realities to articulate or control.

What joins all languages and all men is the necessity to confront life, in order, not inconceivably, to outwit death: the price for this is the acceptance and achievement of one’s temporal identity. So that, for example, though it is not taught in the schools, the south of France still clings to its ancient and musical Provençal, which resists being described as a “dialect.” And much of the 39 in the Basque countries, and in Wales, is due to the Basque and Welsh determination not to allow their languages to be destroyed. This determination also 40 the flames in Ireland for among the many indignities the Irish have been forced to undergo at English hands is the English contempt for their language.

- (D) 37. (A) each (B) either (C) one (D) neither
- (B) 38. (A) in terms of (B) to say nothing of
(C) in accordance with (D) together with
- (D) 39. (A) adhesion (B) cooperation (C) suspension (D) tension
- (A) 40. (A) feeds (B) fights (C) lowers (D) quenches

The story of Orlando’s stunning transformation from swamp and sinkhole to a metropolis began, inevitably, with Walt Disney and Mickey Mouse. Disney first flew over central Florida in an airplane on the fateful day of November 22, 1963. The Kennedy assassination would mark America forever. So would the decision Walt Disney made that day to turn an inland Florida agricultural center into an epicenter of world tourism.

Disney chose Orlando first because it was at the confluence of two of the most important thoroughfares, what today are Interstate 4 and Florida’s Turnpike.

Moreover, since Walt Disney's original theme park—Disneyland, in southern California—covered fewer than 300 acres and was soon ringed with the suburban blight that its success inevitably attracted—motels, strip malls, and copycat amusement parks, Disney hoped to rectify in Florida his mistake of not making Disneyland big enough. He set out to create a new, bigger, better Magic Kingdom. Here, arriving visitors would not be permitted to choose their own parking spaces; smiling Disney characters would do that for them. Besides, water in this Magic Kingdom could not be the tannic brown common in central Florida. So Bay Lake was drained, the sludge removed, and clear water pumped into the resulting lagoon. Even dry land would be turned into another Disney illusion: As you traverse the theme park, you are actually walking on the roof of an immense, underground control building from which the operation is run, staffed, and supplied.

- (B) 41. Why is November 22, 1963 important in the history of Orlando?
- (A) President Kennedy was assassinated on that day.
 - (B) The location for Disney World was chosen on that day.
 - (C) Mickey Mouse flew over Orlando in an airplane on that day.
 - (D) Disney World was first open to the public in Orlando on that day.

- (A) In southern California
 - (B) In central California
 - (C) In northern Florida
 - (D) In inland Florida
- (D) 43. According to the article, why did Walt Disney build a theme park in Orlando?
- (A) Orlando had a tradition of tourism.
 - (B) Orlando was famous for its clear water.
 - (C) Orlando was a metropolis in the 1960s.
 - (D) Orlando was a meeting point of highways.
- (A) 44. According to the article, what was the problem with the Disneyland in California?
- (A) Its success made it overcrowded.
 - (B) It provided nothing but a Disney illusion.
 - (C) It was too far away from hotels, motels, and malls.
 - (D) It failed to compete with other amusement parks.
- (B) 45. According to the article, which of the following statements is true about the Disney World in Orlando?
- (A) It was built in memory of President Kennedy.
 - (B) It is Disney characters that do the parking for visitors.
 - (C) It is smaller but better than the Disney theme park in California.
 - (D) It invites tourists to visit its underground control building.

Eugene O'Kelly was the chief executive officer (CEO) of KPMG—one of the largest accounting firms in the world.

On May 24, 2005, Eugene visited his doctor with a full calendar and a lifetime of plans on his mind. Before this meeting, he was in the prime of his life. However, during the meeting, his doctor told him that he was diagnosed as having brain cancer. All of a sudden, his lifetime of plans dwindled to 100 days, leaving him just enough time to say goodbye. All the plans he had made as CEO were shattered. However, instead of falling into despair and confining himself in denial, Eugene decided to take a more constructive approach to face his "fate," not spending an ounce of energy lamenting the time that he had lost. Eugene made the most of every moment to discover the world around him—nature, connection with loved ones, and living in the moment—as if he had never seen it before. He searched for ways to live a more vivid and meaningful life and to savor or enjoy what was within his reach without aspiring for the impossible. He even completed an inspirational memoir (Chasing Daylight) in three-and-a-half months, reminding people to embrace the fragile, fleeting moments of our lives. Throughout the memoir, Eugene attempts to send a message to the readers:

The past is your guide.

The present is a gift, so live it to the fullest.

The future is for dreamers. Dream. Dream all you can—without reservation.
