French and U.S. business managers have decided different management styles. French meetings, 41, are long and rambling and rarely end on time. Furthermore, meetings often end without closure. Managers in the United States, on the other hand, 42 start and stop a meeting on time, and North Americans business meetings typically end with decisions and action plans. Another difference involves documentation. North American adore documentation, and they have a procedure manual for everything. The French, 43, think this is childish. French managers find it difficult to stick to a schedule, 44 U.S. managers are intolerant of delays. 45, the French prefer to work alone, whereas North Americans like to work in teams. Another major difference in management style is that in French companies, authority comes from the top; French managers do not share information with subordinates and make decisions with little participation by employees beneath them. In U.S. companies, however, top managers share information and frequently solicit input from subordinates.

Ms. Meyerson
GM, Ardent Technologies
254, Powell Street, San Francisco, California 94108

Dear Ms. Meyerson,

It was a good talking to you earlier today, and I was most impressed by the good work that your organization offers to recently hospitalized patients and their families.

Our web site is updated regularly and has complete details on the features of each model. I know you were interested initially in the GH model, but I would strongly recommend the CP model as a better choice for your nursing staff. The CP model has more memory, a bigger viewing screen, and is programmed with note-taking software. The CP model also comes with a hard plastic case at no extra charge.

Our standard discount is 10 percent on orders for 20 or more Wizards. Because this is your first order with Wizard, I can offer you an additional new customer discount of 5 percent, giving you a total savings of 15 percent on your initial order.

Thank you for your interest in the Wizard PDAs. If you need additional technical information or would like to use a CP model on a trial basis, give me a call. I look forward to speaking with you soon.

Best regards,
