四、閱讀測驗

We are all aware of the rapid growth of online databases. This has affected all levels of data storage, from the grandest government archives to the largest corporations and educational institutions all the way down to personal journals and family financial records. On the one hand, this transformation of the way data is stored offers tremendous environmental advantages: much more data can be stored in a much smaller physical space and yet is more-easily available to more people. There is no need to print pages and then physically store them. More and better organized information is easier to access without storage problems. Have we reached some kind of "infotopia"? Perhaps, but there is a serious downside, and that is the problem of document security. Computer systems, which are mostly continuously connected to the Internet, are all too prone to being hacked. This can be done for criminal reasons or simply because of the satisfaction that hackers get from cracking apparently secure information systems. New opportunities for theft, espionage, blackmail, and dirty political tricks are already in existence.

- 【1】46. What is the article about?
① The pros and cons of using network storage systems.
② The increasing use of computers in government offices.
③ The great opportunities available for people with computer skills.
④ The dangers of hackers who constantly steal information from others.
- 【2】47. The word downside in line 7 is closest in meaning to _____.
① benefit
② drawback
③ mistake
④ main point
- 【3】48. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a benefit of using the online storage systems?
① It is environmentally friendly.
② It uses less space to store more information.
③ It completely eradicates the recycling problem.
④ It facilitates accessing of information by a greater audience.
- 【2】49. According to the passage, what has this new way of storing information opened the doors to?
① Further research of online storage systems.
② Illegal activities involving internet use.
③ A boom in computer-related industries.
④ An awareness of the environmental problems.
- 【1】50. Which of the following is the best title of this passage ?
① Data Storage On-Line
② Computer Security Hackers
③ The Era of Infotopia
④ How to Use Network Storage Systems
